Patrick Hughes' Will.

The will of Patrick Hughes, for many years a section hand on the Panhandle road, who died May 12, at his home at McDonald, aged about seventy years, has been admitted to probate and letters testamentary were granted to E. S. McWraith. The will was dated May 7, 1900, and among other things is this:

"Item, I give and bequeath to my daughter, Margaret, the sum of $40, $20 of this sum to be used for masses for my soul and $20 for pocket money."

—Washington, (Pa.) Reporter.

In Clerk Robertson's Office.

Yesterday, in Clerk Robertson's office, the following were recorded:

Deed made May 31, 1900, by Union Building Association No. 2, to Leo Clark, wife of D. B. Clark; consideration, $2,740; transfers lot 23 in Eugene Hogg's sub-division of Hampden Place.

Deed made March 9, 1900, by Harriet Green to Mildred Green; consideration, $300; transfers three lots in West Liberty.

A marriage license was issued to William Otto, twenty-two, and Rachel D. Newbanks, aged twenty-three years, of Wheeling.

Benwood's Dancing Hall.

The Mountain State Electrical Company, of this city, has the contract for the electric fans and other apparatus of a cooling character, for the Blue Ribbon hall, in Benwood. This hall is in the handsome building erected a little over a year ago, and the general manager, William P. Curran, has succeeded in making it an attractive Mecca for the lovers of the torchlight pastime. Summer dances will be given at regular periods by the Empire and Occidental clubs of that town, and many Wheeling people who have attended the winter functions will patronize those of the heated season in the cool and breezy hall.

Brought to Time.

Mayor Parkinson, of Moundsville, yesterday heard the case of that town in an action against the Ohio River railroad. The company was charged with obstructing streets and permitting trains to remain in front of residences to the annoyance of persons living therein. About a half dozen persons living on Thompson avenue, on which the tracks are located, testified to the fact that it was a frequent occurrence for trains to put in from twenty to thirty minutes shifting cars on the road south of Twelfth street. A fine of $10 and costs was assessed against the company.

HOME FROM THE PARIS EXPOSITION

Mr. Anton Reymann is the First Wheeling Pilgrim to Return, After Speedy Voyage.

DID THE DISTANCE IN A WEEK.

The Exposition Well Worth the Journey—Buildings Still in Unfinished State.

The first Wheeling man to return from the Paris exposition is Mr. Anton Reymann, who arrived home on Decoration day in time for dinner, after an exceedingly rapid return trip, for he ate dinner in the French capital on the Wednesday previous, just one week before. Mr. Reymann was accompanied by Mrs. Reymann and their daughters, Misses Nettie and Emma Reymann, and all greatly enjoyed their continental tour.

When seen at his home last night by an Intelligencer man, Mr. Reymann appeared to be in excellent health, and traces of his journey across the Atlantic asserted themselves in his sun-browned cheeks and generally healthy appearance. He expressed his pleasure at being back in Wheeling again, and good American that he is, he was not disposed to note any superiority of the Paris exposition over the World's Fair in Chicago, in 1893.

In response to inquiries he said that he was greatly impressed with the architectural beauties of the buildings at the Paris affair, representing the tastes and designs of American, English, German, French and Italian schools. The exposition does not occupy so great a ground area as did the World's Fair at Chicago, and the buildings were mostly grouped in a semi-circle or horse-shoe fashion, with the main exposition building the prominent part of the enclosure. Elegance in style and taste predominated in the European buildings, the French and Italian having a wealth of statuary and sculptural effects, but Mr. Reymann thought that the American structure was more commanding and equally striking. It had less "gingerbread," and was the subject of general admiration.

"No, there were not the crowds in attendance expected," continued Mr. Reymann; "but that is because the buildings are not finished yet. I was there last on May 23, and an army of workmen were rushing their completion, and they expected everything to be in perfect shape by the middle of June. The fact that the buildings are not finished is better known in Europe than in the United States, hence the absence of a great rush of visitors into Paris. The city was black with people on a Sunday, but the crowd was made up principally of French people who came in from the outlying district. Many Americans have arrived and more are coming with every steamer."

The exposition grounds occupy both banks of the river Seine, and Mr. Reymann and his family viewed them and the city of Paris by night from the lofty Eiffel tower. The grounds are dotted by myriads of flower beds and millions of electric lights made the scene by night one of singular beauty. Mr. Reymann advises all American pilgrims to avail themselves of this view. He and his party left Wheeling February 24, and they visited Germany, Italy and several points in France. They stayed much of the time at Wiesbaden, in Germany, where the Misses Reymann attended school a few years ago, and they renewed many friendships on the occasion of this visit.

The war in South Africa was a topic freely discussed in the lands across the sea, said Mr. Reymann, and he found the sentiment, except in government circles, to be in favor of the Boers. This was true of France and Italy, and especially of Germany. Catch-penny devices do not abound in connection with the exposition in Paris as they did at the "great white city," on Lake Michigan, in 1893, added Mr. Reymann, and the hotel and other charges were not exorbitant, as was supposed. Visitors would find good treatment from the French people and much that would interest and profit them, and Mr. Reymann said that they would get the worth of their money and not regret the trip. He attended the exposition in the same city eleven years ago.

what a difference there is in the makes of Clothing? Many Suits are bought because the price is low. It is often the prices that governs the purchaser, and not the quality or the substantial makes.
